“One of the main reasons we chose to shoot at STHS was that the terrain is massive and has everything - pillows, glades, spines, and all-time alpine features. Between that and the consistent snow quality, it was an obvious decision to spend a productive 2 weeks filming on location with Matchstick Productions for 'Ruin & Rose'.”

Ability Guide

Find the heli ski package that's perfect for you.

There is a misconception that heli skiing is an extreme sport or restricted to experts only; in fact, we have programs that cater to intermediate skiers and riders in addition to our more advanced options. Of course, we recommend that guests have a certain level of comfort and experience in powder prior to embarking on a heli ski adventure and, as such, we encourage those who are unsure to enroll in a Cat/Heli Prep Day at Revelstoke Mountain Resort. This program provides a sneak peek at the type of terrain you can anticipate on your day of heli skiing. It will also assess your ability to ski off-piste.

Intermediate

"I can ski/board any intermediate open run with ease and enjoy soft snow conditions. I'm slower off groomed trails if conditions aren't perfect, but I'm still able to make it to the bottom comfortably and in control. I enjoy a full day exploring all types of terrain, but multiple days might be challenging."

Advanced

"I can ski/board advanced terrain & trees comfortably and in control at higher speeds. I enjoy riding in powder and have experience. I'm physically fit enough for multiple full days on the mountain."

Expert

"I normally ski/board advanced terrain and I'm always looking for deeper snow. I don't need to be the fastest, and air time isn't required for my day to be a success, but I enjoy small drops. I'm fit enough for full days and I try to get as many as I can."

Expert +

"I can ski/board anything, fast, from first chair until last call. If there's powder on the mountain, I'll find it and ride it with ease. Deep snow, tree runs, airs, and steep terrain are what I'm looking for."
